1600 Pennsylvania Avenue NW
Washington, DC 20500

Dear Mr. President:

I had to speak up. The recent outrageous display of bad manners at the UN by the presidents of Venezuela and Iran towards you and all Americans was simply disgusting.

Once before we Americans were faced with a similar dilemma of rising power in the hands of lunatic leaders. Our answer was the Manhattan Project and with it we ended WWII and established our technological military leadership worldwide.

Mr. President, we need another Manhattan Project and we need it now. This time to end our dependence on foreign oil, once and for all. We can use the power of hydrogen, the most abundant "fuel" on the earth which powers the Sun and the entire universe. The hydrogen fuel cell can provide much of the energy consumed in the US.

Under your leadership, my guess is that the scientists and engineers at the Los Alamos laboratory and the Sandia Laboratory in northern New Mexico could, if charged with the responsibility and given the budget, produce the answer to low cost, renewable energy for America and our free world allies. Moreover, they can do it within three years, just as they did in the previous Manhattan Project.

Our legendary president FDR established the Manhattan Project precedent in America in the 1940's. You can do it again in 2007 and establish your own legacy in the history books of our grandchildren and their children.

Those who insult us today will have to drink the oil they produce tomorrow and I hope they choke on it.

Sincerely,

Marvin Maslow, CEO
